Every Day Silverware

There is nothing like good plated silverware for every day use. Of course there is quite a difference in plated silverware. The quality all depends on the amount of silver used in the plating process. Even the cheapest grades look good when new—its wear that tells.

The only kind of plated ware we sell is the kind that has stood the test of time. We guarantee every piece of silver we sell to give years of wear, even when used every day. If it is made in silver or silver plate, we are sure to have it.

Make a Real Effort

If you have tried all kinds of doctors and all the different appliances that treat effects. You have received very little or no benefit. You have become discouraged with those methods and given up the fight. I want to tell you that I have cured cases as bad as yours by adjusting the spinal column. Make a real effort and get well by removing the cause, which is impinged nerves.

The pressure on the nerves checks the life-giving force and disease is sure to follow, release the nerve, health and happiness is the result.

Common Council

The committee who had in charge the placing of $15,000 more insurance on the new City Hall reported that they placed $5,000 with the Thurber agency, $5,000 with Tom Marsilje and $5,000 with Arthur Van Duren.

The building inspectors were instructed to see that the Barkel building 128 East 8th street is torn down immediately and no doubt, the Chinese Laundry on River street and the Vander Veen building on 16th street will receive similar attention. If they are not taken away the city will be forced to do the work and assess the cost to the property. The buildings are a public nuisance.

The council passed the resolution presented by the board of public works last evening to pay Mrs. Nicholas Koster, widow of the young man recently killed by an electric light pole and while in the employ of the city, the sum of $100 dollars to defray funeral expenses and to give her an allowance of $5 per week for two years. The board as well as the council felt that this was a moral obligation and the resolution was passed by both bodies without a dissenting vote.

The West Eighth street paving cannot be finished this year but will be completed as far as the P. M. tracks. Weather conditions are such that in order to get a first class job the delay is warranted. For some of the cement work only one day was available in the last two weeks and the contractor has been ordered to tidy up the street for the winter and finish his work early in the spring.

The Cappon Bertech Leather company protested on the paying of a license for weighing scales on Maple street stating that they were private. The council however ordered that same be paid.

The park bonds for the city bonus fund of $50,000 were passed unanimously.

Only Four Veterans Come Under Rule

At last night's council meeting the taxes of Mr. Chrispell were remitted through the recommendation of Supervisor Van Anrooy. Mr. Chrispell is an old soldier and comes under the law recently passed that all soldiers and sailors of the Federal government who served three months or more during the Civil War or their widows having real estate used as a homestead and valued not to exceed $1200 shall be exempt from taxation.

In the case of Mr. Crispell this was overlooked and when it was brought to the attention of the Supervisor, he recommended that the council comply with the law which was done last evening. There are only four cases in which old soldiers are exempt in this city. The boys in blue either having a property valuation of more than $1200 or have no property at all.

Ordinance

A complete report of the ordinance on Weights and Measures presented by Alderman Drinkwater appears below. It is very interesting and should be read by every reader. The ordinance will come up at the next regular meeting for its first reading. The ordinance follows:

An ordinance relative to Weights and Measures and the appointment of a sealer of Weights and Measures in the city of Holland.

THE CITY OF HOLLAND ORDAINS: Sec. 1. The Chief of Police of the City of Holland is hereby constituted and appointed as Sealer of Weights and Measures in and for the City of Holland; and any Policeman is hereby authorized and empowered to perform any of the duties here-in required to be performed by the Sealer of Weights and Measures. Also said duties may be performed by any person especially appointed thereto by the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners of the City of Holland.

Sec. 2. The Sealer of Weights and Measures shall try and prove all scales, beams, weights and Measures used in the City of Holland, for the purpose of buying and selling, and such as he shall find to conform to the standards in his office he shall mark or stamp with the word "Approved" or with the letter "H" and the year in which such inspection is made; and such as he finds do not conform to the standards in his office he shall mark or stamp with the word "condemned". He shall have the power to remove or caused to be removed any scales, beams, weights or measures which he finds that do not

Sec. 3. No person, firm or corporation, shall use any scale, beam, weight or measure, which has not been duly approved as herein provided for, except on a written permit of the Sealer of Weights and Measures, pending an inspection. If the said Sealer of Weights and Measures shall condemn any scale, beam, weight or measure, he shall notify the person, firm or corporation in whose possession the same is found and that he has condemned such scale, beam, weight or measure, and that it must be repaired within ten days, and that it is not to be used until again inspected and approved. If the same is not repaired then upon such second inspection the said Sealer of Weights and Measures shall remove the same from the place where found.

Sec. 4. All scales, beams, weights and measures shall be tested as herein provided at least once in each fiscal year. The Sealer of Weights and Measures shall keep in a book, provided by the City of Holland, a record of all weights, measures, scales or beams inspected, the date thereof, the person owing or using same, the number and size thereof, and whether approved or condemned. Said book shall at all reasonable times be open to inspection and examination of the public.

Sec. 5. The standards herein provided for shall be such as conform to the United States Standard of Weights and Measures.

Sec. 6. No person firm or corporation shall neglect or refuse to exhibit any scale, beam, weight or measure, or other instrument used by him in weighing or measuring, to the Sealer of Weights and Measures when demanded by him, or his duly authorized assistants, for the purpose of having the same tested and inspected.

Sec. 8. The Sealer of Weights and Measures may at any time order any person delivering coal, coke, hay or straw, (except hay or straw in bundles) as in section 7 hereof provided, to drive on such scale in the City of Holland as he may designate, to determine the correctness of the certificate in said section 7 provided for, and if the said certificate is false or incorrect, the said person issuing the said certificate shall be liable as in this ordinance provided for.

Sec. 9. No person shall in any way interfere with the Sealer of Weights and Measures in the performance of any act herein required to be performed by him. Any interference with any assistant or agent, duly authorized, shall be deemed an interference with the Sealer of Weights and Measures. No person shall refuse or delay his entrance into any place at any reasonable time for the purpose of executing any of the duties required of him; no person shall refuse or omit to stop any wagon or carriage or other conveyance, whereby the execution of this ordinance or any part thereof, shall be impeded or obstructed; and any person selling, delivering, or attempting to deliver coal, coke, hay or straw of less weight than is purported to be sold or delivered in accordance with the certificate provided for in section 7 hereof, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this ordinance.

Sec. 10. Any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions or requirements of this ordinance, on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars, and not more than fifty dollars, and the costs of such prosecution, or may be imprisoned in the City Jail of the City of Holland, or the County Jail of the County of Ottawa, for a period of not less than 5 days nor more than 30 days, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court or magistrate before whom such conviction is had.

Sec. 11. This ordinance shall take effect 20 days after its passage.

Dry Won't Eat

Harold Driy, the Holland boy who is in jail charged with the burglary of the Vander Schel bakery at Holland, still protests his innocence of any connection with the case. The young prisoner, who was recently acquitted of burglary, did not relish the idea of being sent to jail. The young man missed several meals because he announced that he did not like the grub and would not eat the stuff, which has been provided by Sheriff Andre. The officers made no effort to persuade the boy to eat, until at last he was informed that unless he cared to eat the food would not be sent in to him. Young Driy began to feel a void in his stomach about that time, however, and he replied that if the food was clean, he might eat it. He was assured that everything was in accordance with the pure food law and the bean soup and fresh bread was finally devoured by the boy with the finicky appetite.

Ottawa's First Peach Trees

Ottawa county is one of the oldest fruit counties in the state. Thomas Wilde, of Coopersville, tells us that Mrs. Stoddard, wife of Allen Stoddard, brought peach pits with her from New York in 1831.

Cleared land in this early day was very precious and Mr. Stoddard refused to let her plant them, but she urged him saying that they might prove profitable investment. He at last allowed her to plant them about the stumps. They grew rapidly, reaching the height of six feet the first season, and bearing a heavy crop the third year. This fruit was taken to Grand Rapids in a row boat and these peaches so far as we have a record of were the first peaches ever sold on Grand Rapids market, now recognized as the largest wholesale peach market in the world.

Two years after Mrs. Stoddard planted her peach pits and one year before they bore fruit, Harry Griffin, of Grand Haven, planted the first trees (of various kinds) to be planted in the vicinity of Grand Haven. The first orchard in the vicinity of Holland was planted by A. C. Van Raalte, Thomas Wilde was one of the first planters at Coopersville. J. C. Van Meers was one of the first planters at Jamestown.—The Fruit Belt.

Protest

One of the members of the board of trade brought in a protest to the News stating that the selection of a name for the new theatre was not sanctioned by the board and while members of the board may have been selected to go over the different names suggested it had nothing to do with the board proper. The gentlemen does not wish the board affiliated with a theatre proposition while he is a member.

Holland City News' Name for New Theatre is Accepted

Holland's new theatre will be called the Knickerbocker. The name was selected by a committee of the board of trade from a list of more than one hundred names suggested. Frank Lievense named the theatre for which he receives a seasons pass to every show. The walls of the new theatre are up and with fair weather prevailing it is expected that the building will be ready for the opening performance on New Year's day. The City News in an editorial shortly after the proposed opera house plan was a certainty, suggested that the same be called The Knickerbocker. This was at least four months before any contest was thought of.

Tickets for the Treble Clef excursion can be purchased at Hardys' jewelry store, Meyer and Cook Bros. music store.

John H. Zwiers and Mauries Huyzer have dissolved partnership. They are located at 208 River street. Zwiers retires from the firm.

Jacob Flieman writes Albert Hidding from the north wood that he has not yet killed a deer but took ten shots at an otter but failed to land it. This animal's fur is very valuable and one in the hunters bag would more than compensate him for his trip. This water animal is the hardest kind of game to get.

In accordance with the annual custom Hope college is observing a week of prayer with daily meetings in Winant's chapel. The meetings are under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and leaders are chosen from ministers and laymen in this city and vicinity. The leaders for the week are Revs. B. Hoffman and Jacob Heemstra of Grand Rapids, Rev. Edward Niles, Prof. E. Dimment, E. O. Schwitters and H. Kuiper of Grand Rapids.

The petitions which are being circulated on behalf of the Sunday closing of the postoffice are being liberally signed and the committee expects to have all the petitions in within a few days, when they will be forwarded to the authorities at Washington. Of the forty petitions in circulation nineteen have been returned with nearly a thousand signatures, representing that number of families. It is anticipated that nearly two thousand signatures will be secured indorsing the movement.

Wandering about the streets without funds and without a place to stay a family composed of a mother and three children were picked up by Officer Leopold Monday evening and were taken care of by the poor authorities of the city for the night. The family was bound for Oden, Mich., and had transportation in their possession up to that place, but there was no train out of Holland in that direction until Tuesday morning and the mother did not have a penny to buy food and lodging for the night for herself and children. They were fed at the Boston restaurant and were then lodged at the Atlas Hotel.

Fennville

An event of considerable importance to this locality as well as to the traveling public, was the formal opening of Fennville's new hotel, the Stevens. The new building takes the place of the old hotel which burned last May. Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Stevens, the proprietors, have given Fennville the most modern hotel between Grand Rapids and Chicago. The building is constructed of cream colored vitrified brick, with commodious porches and occupies attractive grounds. Hot water heat and gas and electric lights in every room, artistic decorations, quartered oak finish and furniture large plate glass windows hot and cold running water, the latest sanitary plumbing and numerous modern conveniences in the kitchen and dining room, making this all that could be desired. Fennville is proud of this new home for the traveler and of its progressive proprietors.

Saugatuck

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walz, last Wednesday evening, when their daughter Edith was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Bennett of Grand Rapids. Promptly at 6:30 the happy couple, preceded by Rev. E. K. Lewis, took their place before a bank of ferns and flowers where the ceremony was performed. After the congratulations were offered, the company was invited to the dining room, where a delicious four course luncheon was served by the bride's sister Mildred, assisted by Myra Freyer. The bride is one of Douglas' most loved daughters, having spent all of her life in their midst. The groom is an estimable young man and has made many friends in our village. The bride was becomingly attired in a cream crepe de sheen, trimmed with baby Irish medallions. After the wedding the couple departed amid showers of rice and good wishes for Grand Rapids where Mr. Bennett had already furnished a home for his bride.

We were shown some corn grown in this locality by a farmer that demonstrates that good corn can be raised in this place. The ears were large and some 12 to 14 inches in length, every kernel of corn being full and well developed.

The recent church improvements of the Congregational church are completed. This includes a complete basement under the building costing upwards of eight hundred dollars, including a new heating apparatus of the largest and best kind. The money to meet this improvement has been all raised except the small sum of about eighty five dollars, which was contributed by the pastor, Rev. B. W. Back who raised much of the money outside of the church membership, and he feels very grateful to the public who donated to this valuable and much needed church improvement.

News has reached the relatives and friends in Holland and here of the death of Robert Anisely in Chicago. He formerly made his home here. The body has been shipped to Saugatuck for burial.

Fillmore

At the special meeting of School District No. 7, Mr. Manlius and Fillmore it was decided to build an addition to the school house. The progressive element in the district realized that one teacher giving fifty scholars and teaching eight grades, it was impossible to realize satisfactory results. At present there is over one thousand dollars Primary money on hand and to keep this money idle is poor economy. Albert Cook, John Siebelink and Henry Oetman were appointed building committee.

New Holland.

Rev. J. Steunenberg of Chicago has declined the call extended him by the Reformed church here.

A call has been extended by the Reformed church of New Holland to Rev. Mullenberg. The church has been without a minister since Rev. John Wesseling left for Maurice, Iowa, a few weeks ago.

That Crisp is a good country to raise sugar beets is proved by the fact that B. Altema raised sugar beets weighing twelve pounds.

DIRE DISTRESS

It Is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Holland Readers

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is the kidneys' cry for help.

Neglect hurrying to their aid. Means that urinary troubles follow quickly.

Dire distress, diabetes, Bright's disease.

J. W. Fliehm, wagon maker and painter, 83 River St., Holland, Mich., says: "I suffered for a long time from dull pains in the small of my back, often changing to sharp, shooting twinges, I could hardly stoop or lift and if I sat down in a chair it was only with great difficulty that I was able to arise, as my muscles and joints were stiff and sore. I consulted physicians and they told me that I had lumbago, but their medicines did not help me. I finally decided to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial procured a box at H. R. Doesburgs Drug store. After using them a short time all my troubles disappeared and though this occurred over four years ago, I have not suffered from kidney complaint since. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a great many people and shall continue to do so."

A Thanksgiving Prayer

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

And let them sacrifice the sacrifice of thanksgiving.—Psalm cvii, 32.

Lord, what have I but empty hands,
And aching feet from hopeless quests,
And memories of barren lands,
And days and years of sore unrests?
The censer that I fain would swing
Holds neither fragrant herb nor spice;
There are no first-fruits I may bring
To heap in thankful sacrifice.

Shall I amid life's stubble glean
To find the grain the harvest leaves,
Then gaze, contented and serene,
The while my neighbors count their sheaves?
There is no gold, nor house, nor land
That I may thank Thee it is mine;
I may not measure with my hand
Thy tithing of my corn and wine.

Had I all these, then might I kneel
And pray with fervent, easy speech
That were an echo of my zeal,
Of all that was within my reach.
Shall I with pharisaic grace
Bow down and play the hypocrite,
And fling my prayer in Thy face—
With not a heartborn word in it?

Nay, not in money let me count
The worth of all that I have had,
Nor miserlike tell the amount
Of what rich gifts have made me glad.
Though I have tasted of defeat,
Still have I left the strength to rise,
The tempter or the foe to meet
With newer courage in my eyes.

So, thus I pray with empty hands—
But not, Lord, with an empty heart,
Though from fair houses and rich lands
My lines are ever cast apart.
Poor in all things save this, That I
Need never thank Thee for my spot
And that there is no haunting sigh
To break my slumber after toil.

BETSY'S THANKSGIVING GUEST

By BLANCHE TANNER DILLIN

SHOULD think people would know enough to stay at home on Thanksgiving! Any one of sense would know families like to be alone one day in the year." Elizabeth threw down the letter she had been reading.

"Why, Elizabeth, what's this all about?" asked her husband.

"I suppose you won't think it is anything, but it just spoils our day together. We weren't going to have any one here tomorrow except the family, and now Gertrude Allison has written that she will be out in the afternoon."

"Here comes Don. Perhaps he can suggest a way out of your troubles," said her husband with evident relief.

"Hello, sis, what's the matter? You look as black as a thunder cloud. I see, had a quarrel with Tom, and the first year, too. You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Mr. Leonard."

"Don't be silly, Don," his sister pouted. "I suppose you will disagree with me just as Tom did. Here's a letter from Gertrude saying she will be here on Thanksgiving."

"Well, sister mine, may I ask the cause of your displeasure?"

"The cause! That's just like a man. Can't you see, either, that we want to be alone on that day?"

"Poor Betsy! Shall I telegraph, 'Only the family wanted. Others will please stay at home and—?'"

"Do stop your nonsense, Don. I suppose I am foolish, but I thought we'd have such a good time together." Elizabeth sighed.

About an hour before dinner time the telephone rang and was answered by Elizabeth.

"Hello! Who is it? O, Gertrude! Well, well, old girl, are you actually there? Glad! I guess I am. Just wait until I get you at arms' length. Coming out to dinner? Oh, that's lovely. And stay all night, can't you? Good! You needn't think I'll let you go tomorrow. You've got to give me a week at least. Won't we have a good time talking over old times? But you must stay. Don't be a minute late. Goodbye."

"Oh, for heaven's sake, what'll I do?" asked Elizabeth, as she hung up the receiver with a nervous bang and faced her husband.

"Where am I going to put her, I'd like to know. There's nothing to do but make Don give up his room and go to the hotel. And, oh—I'll have to clean that room at once! It's the worst looking place I ever saw."

Half an hour later as Don mounted the stairs he was surprised to find his special sanctum undergoing an unusual process.

"Impossible!" he exclaimed.

"Don't you dare to come in here!" his sister commanded.

"Certainly not if you don't wish."

"Go down and tell Nora to put on an extra plate. Gertrude is coming to dinner," Elizabeth added in a tone that left no room for comments. And Don obeyed, speechless for once.

Dinner was ready, but there was no sign of Gertrude.

"Let's sit down and eat," suggested Don.

The bell rang. "There she is now, sis," said Don. "Go and give her a sister's welcome."

"I can't understand it," said Elizabeth, as she returned in a few minutes with an open letter in her hand.

"Can't understand what?" she was asked.

"Why, here's a special delivery from Gertrude saying she will not be in the city until tomorrow. What does it mean? She just telephoned me an hour ago that she would be here to dinner."

Don threw up both hands and laughed.

"Ha! Ha! Betsy, Betsy! I'll bet on Betsy every time!" He threw himself on the lounge and smothered his face in the pillows.

"Stop rolling round that way and tell me what the matter is!" Elizabeth commanded.

"You're a great girl! But then women are all alike."

"Tell me this instant what you mean."

Don rose from the couch, and dropping upon one knee before the offended mistress of the house he said: "Sister, mine, forgive me if you can, but I couldn't resist the temptation."

"Get up! Get up, I say! Do you mean to tell me that you played that trick on me?"

"Betsy, you made such a fuss about Gertrude's coming that I thought I'd like to see how you would act if the lady herself should happen to announce such a mad possibility, so I went to the corner telephone—and found out!"

"Donald Warner, you are a mean thing—the meanest thing on earth!" His sister dropped into a chair and covered her face with her hands.

"Poor dear, it was a shame—a base trick!" Don admitted contritely as he patted her head and deferred to the faces of the smiling group. "But just think, sister, my room is cleaned," he whispered for her ear alone.

THANKSGIVING RECOLLECTIONS

By GEDDARD CHADMAN

When the winds of bleak November
Down the chimney moan and sigh,
Stirring into life each ember
Till the flames roar fierce and high
Then my thoughts revert to boyhood,
When Thanksgiving Day drew nigh.

In the flames I see the farmhouse,
And the woodland brown and serene
Where the sportsman's rifle echoed
As that day of days drew near.
Scenes which ever shall be cherished
In the burning logs appear.

I can see the deep old cellar
Where the apple bins, piled high,
Overshadowed heaps of pumpkins
Golden as the sunset sky,
And the casks of new fall cider
Stood along the wall close by.

As the old-time scenes are fading
While the fire slowly dies,
Visions of a groaning table
Are presented to my eyes,
And I almost scent the fragrance
Of the mince and pumpkin pies.

KEEPING THE FEAST

TRUE MEANING OF LESSON OF THANKSGIVING.

Should Be Time of Rejoicing for All,
Those Who Have Abundance
Sharing With Their Less Fortunate Brethren.

The sober joyfulness of the first New England Thanksgiving did not exhaust itself in a single day. Governor Bradford after the first scanty harvest made deliberate provision for three days' feasting and rejoicing, during which the infant colony entertained more than its own number of visiting Indians. It is true that these guests contributed venison for the feast, as they had earlier contributed corn for the use of the colony, but the heart of the feast was in the hospitality which made them welcome.

It would be hard to imagine a greater contrast than that which must have existed between the sober garb and quiet manners of the Pilgrims, schooled in persecution and privation, and the fanatic dress and unrestrained impulses of Massachusetts and his people. The Indian could be dignified enough upon occasion, but his uncareful self-indulgence even more than the colonists' hospitable unbending was the sign of an unusual confidence. That mutual confidence and good understanding, to the continuance of which these days of thanksgiving and feasting evidently contributed not a little, procured those necessary years of peace and security which enabled the weakness of the Pilgrim colony to harden into strength.

We call Thanksgiving day especially a home festival, and its associations are most delightful in family reunions and home pleasures. Yet the precedent of Plymouth hospitality has never been and never ought to be neglected. It is a time when those who are blessed with home joys take pleasure in sharing them with the homeless. Families enlarge themselves to include not only the scattered next of kin, but those also who are far from their own home circle. A touch of the blessed spirit of home joy and mutual helpfulness stretches beyond the limits of the family to include those for whom the day would otherwise be lonelier than others days for privation of home companionships.

This gracious hospitality of the Thanksgiving season brings home memories to many guests. It ought to have its teachings for many others—young men and women in our towns who dream of homes yet to be earned or realized—in keeping them in touch with the true home spirit. There is no selfishness in true home love. It is not merely as a refuge for ourselves that we build the walls and lay the hearth and kindle the fire and spread the table. To gain a home and make it beautiful is the dream of many of these homeless ones. To make home ministrant and hospitable and so to crown it with a higher beauty ought to be the suggestion of the happy feasting and fellowship of Thanksgiving.

The community was the host in that first Plymouth festival, yet the community divided into families. As they kept the feast in the large family groups into which the necessity of house building and defense had up to this time divided them, did any of them think, we wonder, of the law of the passover established for other exiles and pilgrims so many centuries before: "And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbor next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls?"

As a community we are today much further from absolute want and peril of starvation than the Pilgrims were when they began the custom of the yearly feast of thanksgiving. Yet there are many of our people who, if they keep the feast, must keep it in the midst of poverty and peril of want. In the midst of greater want and peril the forefathers invited strangers to the feast, providing what they could. They were wholly free from that false pride, so common nowadays, which thinks most of appearances and is ashamed to offer hospitality unless it is possible, also, to make a show of wealth. Out of what they had the fathers gave God thanks and entertained the strangers at their gates. The other spirit of false pride and shame robs both guest and host of the best joy of the Thanksgiving time—the joy of common faith in the Giver of all good, and of cordial welcome which has nothing to conceal and nothing to assert.

Ballade of Harvest Home

By Charles Moore

Fields are barren and woods are brown,
Southward turns the wild birds' flight;
Winter is coming with roar and frown,
Spreading his mantle gleaming white;
But at the father's hearth unite
The old and young from far and near—
To greet with laughter and delight
The Harvest Home of all the year.

Forget the weight of labor's crown,
To pleasure now the hours invite;
The merry shouts of children drown
Their elders' talk of "business" trite;
With smiles in every face bedight,
Ring out the voices sweet and clear—
Each maid's a queen, each lad's a knight
This Harvest Home of all the year.

Not wealth nor place nor cut of gown,
'Tis work well done sets hearts alight;
Alike to those of farm and town
Shines Home's fair beacon fondly bright;
Far float youth's songs across the night—
Now let the crisp winds roar and veer,
Strong doors shut out the storm king's might
This Harvest Home of all the year.

ENVOI
Prince, grant that when our youth takes flight
And Age's sure message doth appear
Heaped high, Love's store shall joy invite—
That Harvest Home of Life's round year.

WITHIN OUR OWN HEARTS.

Annual Season of Praise and Prayer
Belongs to Each of Us For Ourselves.

The president and the governors of states appoint Thanksgiving day; but each person makes it for himself. It cannot be made in haste. The choicest things of the year must be gathered together in thought and put into it. First are the permanent treasures of life. God is, and is our Father. We have his word and his spirit. We are in his family, not as servants but as sons, and "the son abideth forever." We have, therefore, a future unbounded by time in the father's house. These everlasting values enrich present life beyond limit. The day when men's attention is concentrated on them becomes Thanksgiving day.

We put into it also what the years have given us—family affections and friendships. Ties suspended by circumstances, not broken, are renewed, as faces of the absent ones reappear in the home.

The blessings of this year must be put into Thanksgiving day. The work that was planned when the winter's shortest days began to lengthen is done. The harvest is completed. We do not count the losses today. We put the disappointments and sorrows out of sight for the present. We are not making a fast but a feast. The tables are loaded with good things, which symbolize the good things of the year and of all the years and of the eternal life. And how many of them are here with us—the husband, the wife, the children, father and mother, friends at hand and messages from those afar, the home and all it contains. We have a Christian fellowship, a great and prosperous country at peace with the world and with a helpful mission to other nations which is being nobly fulfilled.

But something still is lacking. It is the flavor to the food, the piquancy to the appetite, the flowers to adorn the table. What we give gives value to what we have. "God setteth the solitary in families." If there is a chair vacant at our table some lonely one must be found to fill it. While there are homes unprovided, ours cannot be completely ready for the festival. "Send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy unto our Lord." Thus our table is adorned and its plainest food made rich.

Now the day is made. We unite in thanksgiving and we share the feast in a happy fellowship surrounded by an uncounted multitude of merry making homes, whose unspoken greetings to one another explain the meaning of our national Thanksgiving day. "For the joy of the Lord is your strength."

SET APART FOR GRATITUDE DAY OF FAMILY REUNIONS

Thanksgiving the Day of All Days on Which We Should Remember Our Blessings.

On Thanksgiving day most of us, with deliberate intention and perhaps no little effort, close the door by which grumbles enter and open wide the other door that lets in praise. For once gratitude has the right of way and we are just a little bit ashamed to be found in the dull company of complaint. At the Thanksgiving service, if we attend it, we give ourselves to a deliberate enumeration of our blessings and remember, perhaps, how many there are less favored than ourselves. There is not time for a complete and permanent smoothing out of the wrinkles of care and perplexity before we sit down at the bountifully laden table, but on the whole we are ready to enter into the spirit of the time. Is Thanksgiving, then, a reversal or an occasional accentuation of the proper habit of a Christian's life? If there must be rusty hinges, should they be upon the doors of praise, while the other door of grumbling works with constant ease? The undisputed right of way in the Thanksgiving season ought to be the right of way for all the year.

COMMENT COURTEOUS.

"Now good digestion wait on appetite, as Shakespeare says," said the landlady when the star boarder began carving the turkey.

"Shakespeare also said that all this world is a stage, Mrs. Pinchum, but don't you think it is carrying the Shakespearean idea and the stage simile a trifle too far when you try to serve papier mache turkey?"

Thanksgiving Not Complete If a Face Is Missed From the Household Gathering.

During the first long winter in Plymouth one-half the little band of pilgrims died. The winter snow covered their leveled graves, and when spring warmth removed that friendly covering the survivors planted grain above the graves, that waving blades of wheat or corn might hide the colony's loss from the cruel eyes of the foe whom fear alone restrained from open warfare. The pilgrims' hearts were stout, and though their eyes might grow dim at times in looking over the fields where only mysterious patches of a brighter green revealed to their sad knowledge the secret of a hidden grave, they dashed away the tears and only strove the more to carry on the task those tired fingers had let fall. And when autumn came with its abundant harvest the great thanksgiving feast they held was in communion with the lost. Secure in the belief that their dear ones in happier spheres were rejoicing with them, they gave thanks for home, for harvest, and for hope.

Since then Thanksgiving day has been a day of family reunions. The distant son returns, the grandchildren gather around the table, the old people take pleasure in welcoming the familiar faces that time is changing and the new faces added to the widening family circle. It is a day of careless mirth and thankful gladness. Some go to church to find an expression for the feelings which find them voiceless, and others feel only vaguely, if at all, the need of more than the tacit acceptance and enjoyment of all that the day brings. There are household games and the sports of winter, and if the great football contests seem to overshadow more spontaneous diversions the actual figures would show that not one in a thousand of the population of the country attends the matches. The thoughts of the preachers are apt to turn to the betterment of civic or political conditions, reasoning that the way to show thankfulness for public blessings is to procure more of them. Not even these serious thoughts can turn the character of the day away from that impressed upon it at the beginning, an occasion for feasting on what Providence has bestowed in reward for courage and for toil. The minor strain that runs through the music of the affections is heard by those whose hearts once thrilled to voices silent now, but the spirit of the day is to rejoice.

For what is secure in memory, for the blessings of the year and the day, for the promise of the future, may we be truly thankful.

People Failed to Remember

That the public is a fickle master, was never illustrated better than in the recent general election when Gerrit J. Diekema was defeated for re-election to his seat in congress. In Holland his home town, Edwin F. Sweet received six hundred votes and Mr. Diekema's former majority was cut down. His majority of the primary election over Ellis was cut three hundred, with no internal fight apparent in the city. And this too in the face of the fact that Mr. Diekema had just secured a government building for his town. In ordinary cases common gratitude would have shown itself and given Mr. Diekema an enormous majority in his home town. Over in Ionia county, conditions were much the same. Mr. Diekema has secured public buildings for Belding and Ionia, but the county went against him and failed to show its gratitude.

Mr. Diekema was largely influential in securing harbor improvement for Grand Haven and while the city gave him a majority it was not as large as might have been expected under natural conditions. There had, however, been an apparent opposition in this city, which would not down after the primaries.

The wave which swept over the district knew no gratitude and Ottawa county merely aided Grand Rapids in again securing the congressional seat. It was civic pride that gave Mr. Sweet his majority in Grand Rapids, If—but then history has repeated itself, and the public indeed is a fickle master to serve.—Grand Haven Tribune.

T. R. is even strenuous in his silence.

Congress will hardly know itself when it meets again.

When real estate goes down many bubbles blow up. No bubbles in Holland real estate.

Football at women's colleges would be grand preparation for the stern business of bargain-counter rushing.

With the Bible still leading the list of best sellers, the morals of the country cannot be so very much deteriorated after all.

George Veenker and Samuel Aeilts students at Hope fasted 48 hours for scientific purposes. No doubt they are trying to solve the high cost of living problem.

The Holland Sentinel has Albert Hidding with a new sheriff hat this week. Wrong again apparently they cannot tell the difference between a hat and a bonnet with a full fledged bee.

Alderman Vanden Berg wants to know how large is the strip of land for which the city is paying $50,000 to be used as a public park. It is just large enough for a good sized bill board.

A farmer in this state has been sent to jail for selling bad eggs. There is beginning to be a moral uplift in the egg trade apparently. But the farmers in this vicinity do not sell bad eggs.

The election is over, and we can say without suspicion of a partisan bias, that the many and continuing arrests of wealthy people trying to smuggle luxuries in at New York, answers the charge that the Republican tariff law hits only the poor.

According to the bears, the muskrats, the chipmunks and other natural weather prophets, the coming winter is to be a severe one. It really seems unnecessary to go to the expense of establishing, equipping, and running weather bureaus with such infallible weather wisdom to be had for nothing.

The new five dollar bills will be smaller, says an exchange. Easier to break, too, we presume.

The Western Theological seminary students have organized a baseball team. No doubt all games will be played in a dignified manner.

The Ways and Means committee of the council were ordered to canvass the vote on alderman raise in pay. Why not order a recount.

The Little Stick

A paper called the Little Stick and has for its motto, The "little stick" pokes into the corners where the big stick cannot reach" has the following to say about Charles McBride of this city. This paper generally tell all they know about state officers whether it be good, bad or indifferent, the article on Charlie follows:

Holland, Michigan, is a Dutch community that particularly enjoys exalting its Irish citizens.

On several previous occasions Nicholas Whelan was the man exalted, but now the cards have been cut and the bright and smiling face of Chas. H. McBride appears at the top of the deck. Although Charles has been abiding in Holland ever since he moved there at the mature age of 2, there is very little of the flavor of the Zuyder Zee about him. However, there is an excellent understanding between Charles and his fellow burghers.

Everybody in Holland has had an eye on Charlie for the past 34 years, first they had to watch him to keep him out of mischief, this caused his name to become a household word in the block he lived in.

Sometime later when the growing Charlie started piling bark in a tan yard, they had to watch him to keep him at work, this caused him to become widely known in manufacturing and commercial circles. His attendance at Hope College gave him a wide acquaintance with Dutch savants.

At Olivet College, he devoted his attention to tennis, and posing for his picture while dressed in black tights, this caused him to become known as an athlete and introduced him to art circles.

Having thus rounded out his education it was not remarkable that his fellow citizens should desire his services as city attorney. They elected him and he made good from the start, in fact he more than made good, he distinguished himself, his long list of accomplishments were recalled, he was proposed as a candidate for the legislature, was nominated and last Tuesday he was elected.

Now when the next legislature convenes Charles H. McBride will journey back to the place of his birth, enter the Capitol building, tarry a while and tinker at the laws of this commonwealth.

Also it should be remarked in passing that his fourteen years experience in practicing law and his work in drafting a new city charter for Holland should make his advice valuable in drafting new laws.

Mr. McBride announces himself as first and last a Townsend man, which is accepted in this state to mean a good progressive Republican.

Vos Gets Seven Years

Johnny Vos of Holland who was convicted of burglary in circuit court Thursday was called for sentence at the opening of court Friday. Judge Padgham and the young prisoner had a long talk before the sentence was passed, during which time the boy told the whole story and stated that Harold Driy was implicated in the burglary of the DeJongh store with him.

In open court, Judge Padgham gave the youthful prisoner a friendly lecture which lasted at least fifteen minutes and then sentenced him to a term of imprisonment in Ionia of not less than seven years nor more than fifteen years. John took his sentence calmly and did not seem to be very much disturbed by the prospect of a long term of imprisonment.

John Vos, although only a boy, has already had a checkered career, having a jail delivery and a stabbing scrape against his name. While John was being held at the jail here several years ago in connection with another scrape Vos and a young half-breed youngster became involved in a row in one of the corridors. Before they could be separated, the half breed boy had jerked out his knife and liberally carved Vos about the body. There were a number of deep cuts on the lad's arms and the slashes across the abdomen were very serious and came dangerously near being fatal.

He went to the hospital and it was a long time before he was free of his bandages. He was finally released and went back to Holland where he managed to keep out of trouble for many months. He took up boxing and gained a reputation as a pugillist, winning his battles. He failed to keep to the straight and narrow path and was taken several months ago for the DeJongh burglary. His sensational escape from an upper window of the jail, added another exploit to his criminal record. Now the lad will go to Ionia for a long term of years, and will at least be kept out of mischief for a little while.

Moving Picture Tricks

The most popular of the trick pictures displayed at the Idea moving picture shows of Slagh and Smith on different occasions are those where inanimate objects act with an intelligence which many a human being might envy. In one, shown recently a lazy man while dressing falls asleep in his chair. The bewildered audience then behold his clothes detach themselves from their hooks, move across the floor, and fit themselves on to their owner; his hair gradually gets smoother and smoother as if attended by an invisible brush, till finally it is beautifully parted; and his collar fastens around his neck, and his tie creeps up and arranges itself in a neat knot; his undone boots lace themselves up, the laces creeping in and out of the eyelet-holes and fastening at the top.

To begin with the boots were photographed unlaced. Then came a stop to enable the photographer to put the laces through the first eyelet-hole. He snapshotted this, stopped again to put the laces through another hole, and so on till the boots were finally laced up. Each eyelet-hole represented a stop and a fresh photograph; but when the picture was completed the pauses were cut out and each snapshot joined up.

Suppose, again, it is desired to show a Golliwig having a walk. Photograph No. 1 shows the doll in position. Then a stop while the photographer lifts one of the figure's feet for photograph No. 2. The next photograph will show the foot on the ground again, and its fellow member raised, and thus several snapshots are necessary to record a single step. Multiply these by some hundreds, and join them all together to run in quick succession, and—presto! you have Mr. Golliwog not only walking, but jumping, dancing, riding on an equally live Teddy bear, and generally behaving in the way one would expect such an eccentric-looking gentleman to behave.

Coming within the province of "trick effects" are the numerous pictures where for a brief instance a dummy has to take the place of a living man.

Take the case of the representation of a scaffold accident, for example. The movements of the living actor are photographed right down to the actual moment when he poses for the fall. Then comes a stop when the dummy, dressed in similar clothes, is arranged in his place.

The fall of this with the scaffold is snapshotted, but immediately it reaches the ground comes another stop. The actor is then placed on the exact spot occupied by the dummy, with his limbs and clothing arranged as far as possible, in the same way. At a signal the action recommences, and the camera records the writhings of the injured man.

General Items

The stock yards district of Chicago was on Saturday night the scene of a horrible and unusual tragedy. One hundred horses were boiled to death by steam, and the cries of the poor brutes could be heard above the noise and din produced by the fire department, which was early at the scene, but could render no assistance. The disaster was caused by the bursting of a large steam pipe, which passed through the stables, and the escaping mist fairly scalded the animals. The horses were the property of the Swift Packing Co., and many of them were valued at $400 each, having been used for draught purposes.

The common council of Gary, Ind., elected two new members to its body last night. They were both saloon keepers. As Gary is now supposed to be local option territory, the anti-saloon people are up in arms. This makes a total of six saloon keepers out of the nine members of the council. When the town was incorporated into a city last November, there was only one saloon keeper among the council. Three of the other six members have accepted agencies for breweries and opened up saloons since.

Furs Rapidly Advancing

Seal and mink will soon be a luxury for the very rich only. The former is forty per cent higher than last year and the latter twenty-five per cent. Even the much despised skunk, known to the polite world as a brown marten, has the satisfaction of seeing his outer coat seventy-five per cent more costly than it was a year ago.

These higher prices reflect the growing scarcity of fur bearing animals. The government is trying to save the seals by prohibiting their capture for four years after May 1st next, but with smaller animals the case is much more hopeless.

The common place musk rat skin that used to go begging at ten cents now commands eighty-five, and the coon skin has jumped from fifty cents to seven dollars. Even possum pelts bring a dollar, where they once brought a dime.

No wonder the domestic animals are furnishing furs to the women of moderate means. It remains for the various states to protect the smaller fur bearing animals before they join the ranks of the departed buffalo.

A Bright New Star in The Political Firmament

In the election Tuesday of Chase S. Osborn of Sault Ste Marie, to the governorship of Michigan, a new star shines forth in the political firmament, and who is there that will say it is not to grow in brilliance, until it finally sheds its lustre over the whole United States.

W. F. Knox, one of Mr. Osborn's oldest friends, and his political manager, says that Osborn's election as governor of Michigan makes him a National figure, and further declares he is to occupy a high place in the nation's councils in the near future.

This statement may be taken to mean several things. Mr. Osborn is a man of the greatest independence. He made his campaign for the nomination on a platform of his own constructing, regardless of machine planned planks, blazed his own trail through the political forest, kicking from under his feet the obstructions wherever he found them, and by his forceful eloquence, and persistent plea for honest government, convinced the people of Michigan he was sincere, and would be their true friend.

Later he made one of the most notable and successful campaigns for election in the history of the state, and he will come to Lansing January 1, free of entangling political alliances, with a 50,000 popular majority at his back and no one to say him nay in his purpose to sweep the state house of any undesirables that may be found loitering about insofar as is given him the power by his office.

The statement made by Mr. Knox leads to the conclusion that Mr. Osborn may seek higher honors during or at the close of his term as governor, and already his name is being connected with that of the vice-presidency. And why not? The late elections indicate that President Taft will need the strongest kind of a running mate should he conclude to become a candidate for a second term two years hence—a man who is known to have accomplished things, and a man who is exceedingly strong as a campaigner. Where could Taft and the country pick a better man than Osborn—where a man that so nearly fills the bill, and from what better state than Michigan, the birthplace of the republican party, and ever loyal to the party's principles and its candidates.

It may be said that the vice presidency is not an office that would appeal to a man that is politically ambitious. But Mr. Osborn has repeatedly stated that he is not politically ambitious. He has stated that he cared not for the office of governor simply for the governorship, but for the good he believed he could do the people of Michigan as their general manager in that office. As vice president he would take to the office the force and character of a Roosevelt with fully as wide an experience in public affairs, and Chase Osborn is the type of man who would find things to do as vice president and knows how to do them.

His name has also been connected with the U. S. senatorship, but he is on the most friendly terms with William Alden Smith, who must make a primary campaign for election by the legislature two years hence, and it is hardly deemed probable he will announce himself a candidate against the Grand Rapids man.

Personally Mr. Osborn sets forth his position in the statement he gave to the press Wednesday, wherein he says:

"Personally I can only reward my party and the state by living up to the best traditions of Michigan citizenship. My one ambition will be to execute the laws fairly and fearlessly and to more closely cement the moral, material and social interests of all the people of the state without reference to sections. I wish to stand for those progressive reforms that should rationally tend to make for a better understanding between all of the citizens of the land, to the end that they may always keep in mind the fact that the interests of all are only subserved by honesty, faithfulness, economy, obedience to law and justice."—Lansing Republican.

Again in Toils

Harold Dry is in the toils again. The young man who was acquitted by a jury in circuit court last week of the charge of burglarizing the De Jongh store has again been arrested on the charge of burglary. This time it is alleged that he was implicated in the burglary of the VanderScheld bakery at Holland. This robbery is said to have occurred some time before the De Jongh affair and Johnny Vos in his confession to the officers implicated Dry. During his own and Dry's trial, Vos stubbornly refused to implicate Dry in the crime of which he stood charged but when he was facing a prison sentence he broke down and told what he knew. He alleges that Dry was with him in the De Jongh robbery and he mentioned the bakery affair as well.

The statement involved Dry pretty badly and although the young man had just been acquitted and just as he was feeling highly elated over his good fortune and escape, The officers pounced upon him for the bakery deal.

Although the lad stoutly protests his innocence the sheriff's officers are inclined to believe Vos' confession and Dry is badly up against it.

Not alone did young Vos implicate Dry in the the shadyaffairs but he brought in the names of several other Holland lads whom he claims were mixed up in some of the many burglaries which have been pulled off in Holland recently.

The officers are not giving out any names as yet but will round them up within the week. Frank Salisbury left this morning for Gary, Ind., Elgin, Ill., and Chicago with a pocketful of warrants in the first efforts to round up the gang implicated by Johnny Vos.

Tickets for the Grand Haven excursion Monday, November 28 are only 45 cents for the round trip.

Hope College

Hope lost the final game of the season to the Kalamazoo Normal Saturday by a score of 6 to 0. Kalamazoo's only touchdown was made in the first quarter by Berger, who smashed through Hope's line—when near the later's goal. Hope played in hard luck and lost mainly on fumbling the ball in the third period. Hope was thrice within reaching distance of Kalamazoo's goal, but the Normalites stiffened their defense each time and prevented the locals from scoring. Captain Stegman and Holtman for Hope, and Damoth for Kalamazoo featured in long runs, while the work of Berger was exceptionally brilliant.

Passing of the Wolverine

The disappearance of familiar landmarks often gives rise to a feeling of sentimental regret. The destruction of a familiar water-mark may properly produce the same effect. Many Holland people will be sorry to hear that the Navy Department is considering the sale, at auction, of the U. S. S. Wolverine (formerly the Michigan), which for years was a frequent visitor in the local waters and admired by citizens and visitors alike.

In times when the average life of a warship has come to be little more than fifteen years, the Wolverine has reached the dignity of real age. It was launched in 1843 and was the first iron vessel afloat on the great lakes. It is now at Erie, Pa., where it was built. Its survival to the present day is due doubtless, to the difference between fresh water and salt water as agents in the deterioration of iron ships.

For many years the Wolverine, owing to treaty stipulations between the United States and Great Britain, was the sole representative, in western eyes of our country's naval power. The passing of this historic old ship might be available, for the construction of a substitute, the appropriation of $260,000, made in 1898, for an additional gunboat on the great lakes.

Unless another HOLMES should arise and launch a ringing ballad, the Wolverine stands a good chance of being sold for a song and dismantled. Or possibly a pacific career as an excursion steamer might keep her for a while longer in the public eye.

Sports

A game of indoor baseball at Lyceum Rink Friday evening the C. L. Kings trined the Limberts to the tune of 14 to 9. The batteries were Vick and Lordell for the Limberts and Sinke and Hamelink for the basket makers.

The basket ball league which was organized in Hope college about three weeks ago, finishes its season this week. At present Smalligan's and Stegenga's teams are tied for first place in the preparatory department, both having the record percentage of 1,000. Kleinheksel's team is at the head of the college department with the same percentage. Manager Den Herder says that much good new material has been brought to light by these contests to fill the vacancies which existed at the opening of this term, all of the old players but one having left.

A series of indoor baseball games played between the team of the Maple Grove school and the Christian school resulted in victory for the former.

The Deadly Cold Bed

If trustworthy statistics could be had of the number of persons who die every year or become permanently diseased, from sleeping in damp or cold beds, they would probably be astonished and appalled. It is a peril that constantly besets traveling men, and if they are wise they will invariably insist on having their beds aired and dried, even at the risk of causing much trouble to their landlord. But, it is a peril that resides also in the home, and the cold "spare room" has slain its thousands of helpless guests and will go on with its slaughter till people learn wisdom. Not only the guest, but the family often suffer the penalty of sleeping in cold rooms and chilling their bodies at a time when they need all their bodily heat, by getting between cold sheets. Even in warm summer weather a cold, damp bed will get in its deadly work. It is a needless peril and the neglect to provide dry rooms and beds has in it the elements of murder and suicide.

Dry Acquitted by Jury

Harold Driy alleged to have been the companion of Johnny Vos in the burglary of the DeJongh store at Holland, was acquitted by the jury in circuit court Friday afternoon. The jury received the case at shortly before four o'clock and had it under consideration but a short time before returning to the court room with the verdict of not guilty.

The case did not require a great deal of time for trial and not a great deal of testimony was introduced. Several witnesses testified as to seeing Driy go home at the time it was alleged that the burglary was committed. Driy's mother and brother testified that the boy was home at the time the alleged burglary was committed. The principal witness for the people was a youth named Kramer, who furnished information of Driy's connection with the case to the police.

Kill Red Fox

Pearl Hardy, employed in the Lewis barber-shop in Allegan, killed a big red fox Monday morning while walking along the Cheshire road in Allegan Co., which passes Littlejohn lake. He was about two miles from town, bent more on a walk than a hunt. It was just about daybreak and as he glanced over into a field he saw what he thought was a dog. Then he saw it was a fox and fired. The animal raced for the woods but suddenly stopped, turned about as if confused, and darted in another direction. Hardy found the fox at the edge of the woods badly wounded and soon had him over his shoulder. It is seldom that a fox permits such a short distance is ten rods to remain more than a second between it and a man. That one certainly must have been foolish, but Hardy sold the skin for six dollars. He quietly told a friend that he had "buck fever," "something awful" when he realized he had killed the fox. When he found him, the fox was jumping and snarling and Hardy thought he had better shoot him again. He stepped back a few paces and fired another shot and missed the dying fox by a foot or more. He finished the job with a stick.—Allegan Gazette.

What is a bank?

A bank is a watchdog for the man with money.

It is an ammunition wagon for a man in a business fight.

It is a ladder for a man with ambition.

It is an air-brake for a reckless business man.

It is the fever thermometer of business health.

It is a rendezvous for the thrifty, an unknown country to the shiftless.

A dollar in the bank is worth two on the grocery bill.

What is honesty? It is a different thing with every class of men.

A highwayman is honest when he does not betray his pals.

A merchant is honest when he doesn't lie about his goods.

An editor is honest when he admits that his circulation is only about twice what it really is.

A banker is honest when he returns with interest money that has been intrusted to him.

An alderman is honest when he does not take portions of the city hall home with him.

A preacher is honest when he spends all his money trying to find the owner of a nickle he has found.

Spreading Happiness.

Happiness, at least, is not solitary; it joys to communicate; it loves others, for it depends on them for its existence; it sanctions and encourages to all delights that are not unkind in themselves. The very name and appearance of a happy man breathes of good nature, and help the rest of us to live.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

THE DARK GETHSEMANE HOUR

Matthew 26:36-40—November 20
"The Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners."—V. 45.

AFTER the Master and his disciples, as Jews, had celebrated the Passover Supper and after he had subsequently instituted the Memorial of his death with the bread and the cup, and after Judas had gone out to betray him, Jesus and the remaining eleven left the upper room in Jerusalem, crossed the city to the gate and thence crossed the Valley Kedron and ascended the sloping side of Mt. Olivet toward the Garden of Gethsemane. The word Gethsemane signifies oil-press. Tradition has it that this Garden belonged to the family of which the Apostles John and James were members, and that for this reason the Lord and his disciples were privileged to feel themselves at home there. St. Mark, the writer of one of the Gospels, but not one of the Apostles, is credited with having been a member of the same family. One of the accounts of the arrest of the Master tells that amongst those who followed after him was a young man wrapped with a sheet and who fled naked when some members of the band attempted to lay hold of him. That young man, tradition says, years afterwards was known as St. Mark.

The Journey to Gethsemane

This was the most memorable night of the Master's experience. He knew perfectly the meaning of every feature of the Passover. He knew that he was the Lamb of God, antitypically, whose death was to be accomplished on the following day by crucifixion. Yet his thoughts were for his dear disciples. He must give them final words of encouragement and instruction. And so he did. Three chapters of St. John's Gospel record the incidents of the intervening time between the leaving of the upper room and the arriving at Gethsemane, the place of the oil-press. "And Judas also, who betrayed him, knew the place, for Jesus oftentimes resorted thither with his disciples" (John viii, 2). In St. John xiv the Master told his disciples about the place he would go to prepare for them, but that he would send the Spirit of Truth to be their Comforter and it would show them things to come. In the fifteenth chapter he gave them the parable of the Vine and the Branches and assured them that no longer should they be servants, but friends. "For all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." In the sixteenth chapter he explained to them that persecutions must be expected, if they would share his sufferings and be prepared to share his glory.

A little while and they would not see him; then again a little while and they would see him. The entire period of his absence, from the Divine standpoint, as compared to eternity, would be but a little while. Then, by virtue of the resurrection "change," they would see him, because made like him. "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." "These things I have given unto you that in me ye might have peace." In the 17th chapter is recorded his wonderful prayer to the Father on behalf of his followers—not for the Apostles only, but for all those also who would believe on him through their word.

In the Garden of Gethsemane

Thus discoursing they reached the Garden, or olive-yard, where the press for extracting the oil from the olives was located. Somewhere near the entrance eight of the disciples were bidden to remain watching while Jesus, with the specially beloved Peter, James and John, went a little further. And then, realizing the impossibility of even his dearest friends appreciating his sorrowful condition, he went still further alone to speak to the Father. The disciples, perplexed, astounded, by the things that they had heard from his lips, did not comprehend the true situation. They evidently thought that there must still be something parabolic in his utterances. They would indeed watch with him, but they were weary and sank into slumber. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak.

If some have queried why the Master preferred to be alone in prayer so frequently, the answer is, "I have trodden the wine-press alone; and of the people there was none with me" (Isaiah lxiii, 3).

His disciples and followers loved him dearly. Still he was alone, because he alone had been begotten of the holy Spirit. His followers could not feel so blessed nor be spirit-begotten until after his sacrifice had been finished nor until he would appear in the presence of God for them to apply his merit imputed to them, to permit them to join with him sacrificially in the sufferings of this present time, that they might share with him also in the glories to follow.

St. Peter, referring to the foregoing experience of our Lord, declares that he offered up strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death and was heard in respect to that which he feared. Why did he fear? Do not all humanity face death, and some of them with great courage and some with bravado? Ah, there is a vast difference between the Master's standpoint and ours as respects death. We were born dying. We never knew perfect life. We have always known that there is no escape from death. It was different with him. His experiences on the spirit plane before coming into the world were all in association with life, perfection of life. "In him was life"—uncontaminated, because he was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners; his life came not from Adam.

He knew that in his perfection he had a right to life, if he would live in perfect accordance with the Divine requirements. But he knew also that by special Covenant with God, "a Covenant by sacrifice," he had agreed to the surrender of all his earthly rights and to allow his life to be taken from him. The Father had promised him a great reward of glory, honor and immortality through resurrection from the dead, but this was dependent upon his absolute obedience in every particular—in word, in thought, in deed. The question was, Had he been absolutely loyal to God in every particular? If not death would mean to him an eternal extinction of being, not only the loss of heavenly glory promised as a reward, but the loss of everything. Can we wonder that he did not understand? The hour seemed so dark, and he said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful." He knew that he was to die. He knew that death was necessary. But here, now, looming up before him on the morrow was a shameful execution as a blasphemer, as a criminal, as a violator of Divine law. Could it be possible that in anything, even slightly, he had taken to himself the honor due to the Father? Could it be possible that in any degree he had held back, even in his mind, from full obedience to the Father's will? Did this crucifixion as a criminal possibly mean the loss of Divine favor? Was it necessary that he should die thus? Might not this cup of ignominy pass? So he prayed in a great agony. And although the older Greek manuscripts do not contain the statement that he sweat great drops of blood, medical science tells us that such an experience would not have been at all impossible in a nervous, strained, mental agony. But we note the beautiful simplicity of the statement with which his prayer concluded—"Nevertheless, my Father, not my will, but thy will, be done."

How childlike and beautiful the faith and trust, even amidst strenuous agitation! St. Paul says that he was heard in the thing which he feared. How? God's answer came by angelic hands. An angel appeared and ministered to him—ministered to his necessity. "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation?" (Hebrews i, 14.) We are not informed in what words this heavenly ministry was expressed to the Master in his lowliness and sorrow, but we do know that it must have been with full assurance of the Heavenly Father's favor and sympathy and love. He was heard in respect to the things which he feared. He received the assurance that he was well-pleasing to the Father; that he had been faithful to his Covenant, and that he would have the resurrection promised.

"Behold the Lamb of God"

From that moment onward the Master was the calmest of all who had any association with the great events of that night and the following day. Officers, servants, Sanhedrin, priests, Herod and his men of war, Pilate and his soldiers, the shouting rabble—all were excited, all were distressed. Jesus only was calm. This was because he had the Father's assurance that all was well between them. As this blessed assurance gave the Master courage, so his followers since have found that, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" If we have the peace of God ruling in our hearts, it is beyond all human comprehension.

Judas the Ungrateful Apostate

The world is full of sadly disappointing characters. In many things we all fail. Selfishness, meanness, perversity, pride, etc., mark the human family most woefully. But withal can anyone find anything more reprehensible than the ingrate who would betray his best friend?

The world is of one opinion respecting such characters as that of Judas. And although he is a noted example he is by no means an exception; there are many. Some of them live today. But whoever can see the meanness of such a disposition with a reasonably good focus will surely be saved from manifesting such a character, however mean might be his disposition. The man who could sell his Master for thirty pieces of silver is justly in contempt with all humanity. Nor was it merely the thirty pieces that influenced the ingrate. Rather it was pride. He had thought to be associated with the Master in an earthly throne. He had set his faith upon this expectation. Now that same Master explained more fully that the throne was not yet in sight; that it belongs to an age to follow this, and was to be given only to those who should prove themselves loyal and faithful unto death. In the mind of Judas the matter took not the wisest and best way. Holding the Great Teacher in contempt, the deceived one probably intended that the delivery should be merely a temporary one—a lesson to the Master not to talk that way, not to carry matters too far—an incentive to him, compelling him to exert his power for the resistance of those who sought his life and thus, in exalting himself, make good to his disciples the share in the Kingdom which he had promised or, failing of this, to wreck the entire project. Alas, the love of money, the love of power puff up and make delirious some who become intoxicated with ambition. How necessary that all the Lord's followers remember the message, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted and he that exalteth himself shall be abased." Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time" (1 Peter v, 6).

WHAT YOU SAW IN THIS PAPER

35 Years ago To-day.

Capt. Charles Brandt informs us that on his last trip, coming from Chicago, nearly mid-lake, he saw a musk-rat; the distance from shore was about fifty miles. This is interpreted as another indication of an open winter.

The store of Messrs. G. C. Jones & Sons, at Olive Station, nine miles north of here was entered by burglars on Monday evening, and a large quantity of goods and provisions were stolen, amounting to the value of at least $200. The goods were tracked into the woods for several miles, by flour that had leaked from the wagon, but the thieves have not yet been arrested.

A nuisance—One cent letters.

A son of Mr. A. J. Neerken, of Laketown, about four miles southwest from the city, on last Sunday fell from a tree in the woods while nutting, broke his leg, and laid all day before he was discovered. We learn he is improving, and promises not to go nutting again on Sunday.

During the storm on Thursday as the schr. Wollin was making port, and just as she was running in between the piers, a heavy sea struck her off her course and right on the stone left in the channel by the late washing out of the crib, disabling her rudder and leaving her in a helpless condition, pounding away on those rocks. They lowered the yawl to bring out a line, but did not succeed; the yawl was swamped. The schr. Four Brothers laying at the harbor, noticing this state of affairs, sent its boat out and took her line to the pier, when they succeeded in heaving her off this stone bed; but for this timely aid, the Wallin would have pounded to pieces. Soon after this the schr. Mary came running in and met with a similar fate when the Wollin was promptly on hand to return the favors bestowed upon her by the Four Brothers.

Another couple will be married in a few days, but we may not give their names nor height, and must measure somewhere near twelve feet, if both their lengths are added together. Can you guess?

Messrs. C. Blom & R. Kleyn have opened a place of amusement in the store formerly occupied by Mr. J. W. Bosman. The amusement consists in target shooting, is quite innocent and cheap—3 balls for 5 cents. Go and see them this evening.

Another body, supposed to be from the Alpena, was found near Port Sheldon, on Saturday last, but could not be identified. A dispatch from South Haven, dated Nov. 9th (last Tuesday,) states that the body of a sailor supposed to be from the Alpena, came ashore yesterday, (Monday,) seven miles north of here, near Glenn postoffice, Allegan County. He was apparently about 22 years of age, about five feet eight inches high, short reddish brown hair, dressed in a laborer's suit, with No. 10 stoga shoes, one front tooth out, smooth face, figure of a ballet girl dancing on a globe, tattooed in blue on the right forearm, but no clue to his identity.

We hear of several deaths lately of wellknown people, or formerly residents here: Mr. F. Kamferbeek, one of our oldest settlers, died at the age of 72. Mr. A. Geerlings, well known here as hardware merchant, miller in this city and at Hamilton, died at Hamilton a few days ago, at the age of 59 years. And just as we go to press we heard of the death of Mr. J. Vande Roovaart, of Chicago, formerly resident of this city. Also, Mr. N. Downie, only a few years ago principal of our public schools. He was one of the best teachers we have ever had in our schools. We also heard of the death of Mr. B. Lashman, formerly residing and doing business near Metz tannery.

Geo. F. Porter fusion candidate won from J. DenHerder of Zeeland for State Senator.

The pluralities for county officers are as follows:

Sheriff Vaupel, rep.	398
Clerk, White, fus.	55
Treasurer, Blakeney, fus.	137
Register, Ingraham, fus.	170
Pross. Atty, Danhoff, fus.	218
Circuit court com'r, Angel, fus.	177
" " Pagelson, fus.	143
Surveyor, Peck, rep.	687
Coroner, Baert, fus.	120
" Stuvellink, fus.	127

The Democratic candidate for surveyor, G. J. Hesselink, was not endorsed by the P. of I's., but Mr. Peck, the republican candidate, was, which accounts for his election and large majority; and also to a certain extent gives the key to the result in this county, and the lessons to be drawn therefrom for the future.
